

Fig. 3. Averages of estimated daily arsenic intake from water via direct drinking, liquid food, and rice cooking water ($n = 65$). Six of 18 families are suspected to use more arsenic-contaminated water for cooking than for drinking. Details of the estimation method are described in the text.