Human Resource Strategy Center for Global Health, National Center for Global Health and Medicine, Tokyo, Japan

1) Objectives

Global health, defined as issues that directly or indirectly affect health that can transcend national boundaries, needs a pooling of experience and knowledge and a two-way flow between developed and developing countries. Global health is a global political engagement at the intersection of health, diplomacy and global collective action.

World Health Assembly (WHA) has been still main arena for advancing global health, while global health agenda is often discussed outside of health sector such as G7/G20 summit, Tokyo International Conference on African Development (TICAD) and the United Nation High level meeting. More political attention has been paid to health issues than ever and those who are working at global health area is required not only technical knowledge and skills on global health, but also required practical diplomacy skills such as negotiation and communication with diverse stakeholders.

This workshop aims to:

1. Develop and strengthen the capacity of the next generation of leaders in global health diplomacy with a special focus on the changing landscape and context in global health and practical applications to health diplomacy at major meetings such as the WHA, G7/ G20 and the United Nation High Level meeting
2. Strengthen a network and partnership in collaboration with key stakeholders both within and outside Japan; and
3. Build capacity to prepare effectively for decision-making meetings such as WHA and board meeting of international organizations.

2) Target participants

1. Young and middle career professionals who will attend upcoming or future WHA or any other board meeting of international organizations. They are expected to be well prepared for the board meetings of WHO and other international organizations, as well as to be actively participate into the meetings through its preparatory process.
2. Young and middle career professionals who are in charge of global health policy at each organization. They are expected to well translate global health policy into their respective activities at regional, national and community level.
